

O You before whose greatness everything humbles itself...

O You before whose power everything surrenders...

O You before whose might everything becomes small...

O You before whose majesty everything bows...

O You before whom every creation submits in awe and fear...

O You before whose greatness even the mountains crack...

O You by whose command the heavens stand...

O You by whose permission the earth remains steady...

O You whom even the thunder glorifies with praise.

Glory be to the One who hears the quietest whisper and the softest words...

the One who sees what flows through the veins and what is hidden deep within the bones...

the Lord of the days and the months, the years and the passing ages.

Glory be to Him. He honored us with the greatest honor, and surrounded us with blessings that came to us long before we even realized them.

He has given us so much good,

and He has turned away from us so much harm.

So we praise Him again and again.

We thank Him again and again.

We speak well of Him again and again.

And we send our prayers and peace upon our beloved Prophet Muhammad again and again.

All praise belongs to You, our Lord.

You have extended our lives and given us more time in this world.

You have beautified our condition and covered our faults.

You have protected us from harm and pushed away from us so much evil.

And through our hope in You and our good expectations of You,

You showed us mercy and accepted us.

You did not allow us to reach Ramadan except because You wanted to free our necks from the Fire.

O Allah, make us among those who are sincere with You in their fasting...

sincere with You in their days...

sincere with You in their giving and generosity...

and sincere with You in all their deeds.

Our Lord, just as You honored us with the month of fasting,
make this year a year of goodness for us.

Make this year better for us than the one before it,

O Possessor of Majesty, Perfection, and Beauty.

O Allah, let Your ease overcome our difficulties.

Let Your richness remove our poverty.

Let Your forgiveness erase our sins.

Let Your relief lift away our worries.

Let Your protection fill our bodies with health.

Allow our hopes to be fulfilled.

Restore to us our rights.

Protect us from those who wish harm for us.

Show us what brings joy to our hearts.

Honor us by freeing us from the Fire.

Answer our prayers.

And have mercy on those among us who have passed away.

O Allah, heal every sick person among us.

Heal those we love who are ill.

And make health and well-being a blessing that remains with us.

O Allah, grant success to those who care for our community and our mosque,

those who look after our affairs,

those who dedicate their time and effort to serve and support us.

Help us to appreciate them,
to work with them,
and to pray for them.

Make us people who encourage and uplift others,
not people who complain or spread negativity.

O Allah, make us among those who overlook faults...
who forgive and show mercy...

who greet others with smiles and warmth.

By Your mercy, O Most Merciful of those who show mercy.
